

2003 Law School Class Ranking Guide Published by BCG Attorney Search

BCG has just released its annual publication, The BCG Attorney Search Guide to Class Ranking Distinction and Law Review Admission at America's Top 50 Law Schools. The book is designed to help hiring personnel at law firms to have a way to gauge the law school performances of their applicants with a concise comparative tool, and this year's edition makes that task easier than ever. By expanding the book to include 25 more schools and including more information on each school than last year, we have worked very hard to make sure we can answer every possible question about all the top law schools.

BCG Attorney Search, a national legal recruiting firm is pleased to announce the release of its 2003 Class Ranking Guide. This guide serves as a reference for students, law schools, and employers looking to better understand the landscape of law school rankings.

The guide identifies all the top 100 law schools in the United States within specific geographic areas - West, Midwest, South, and Northeast - and assigns each school a class ranking of 1 to 5, with 1 being the highest. The guide also provides an overview of each school's student body, faculty, program offerings, and more.

The guide includes more than just rankings. It includes useful facts and statistics about the schools and their offerings, such as the median LSAT scores for the enrolled classes and the average GPA for all students. It also provides profiles for each school, which allow employers to review detailed information about the school's admissions, faculty, curriculum, and more.

With the 2003 Class Ranking Guide, employers and students can have a comprehensive understanding of the legal landscape in the United States. The guide can help employers make more informed hiring decisions and allow students to better choose a school that fits their needs.

BCG Attorney Search's 2003 Class Ranking Guide is the premier resource for employers and students looking to better understand the rankings of law schools within the United States. The guide provides a comprehensive overview of the schools, featuring rankings, student body information, faculty profiles, program offerings, admissions, and more. It provides employers with the essential information they need to make informed hiring decisions and students with the data they need to decide on their law school. With this guide, BCG Attorney Search offers employers and students an invaluable resource for understanding the legal landscape.

BCG Attorney Search Publishes 2003 Class Rankings Guide

BCG Attorney Search is pleased to announce the release of its 2003 Class Rankings Guide. The guide includes a comprehensive, state-by-state listing of all the law schools in each state as well as their 2003 class ranking. In addition, the guide offers a comprehensive view of the legal industry, giving comprehensive national and regional legal market trends, expert advice on career paths, detailed analysis of salary trends and compensation, and a comprehensive overview of the United States legal market.

Information Provided by the Guide

The recently released 2003 Class Rankings Guide provides a comprehensive guide to the legal industry for attorneys and prospective law students. The guide contains detailed information on the most competitive law schools in each state, as well as an overview of the legal market nationwide. The guide also offers advice on choosing the best law school for each individual, as well as salary trends and compensation in the legal industry.

Comprehensive Overview of the U.S. Legal Market

The guide includes a comprehensive overview of the U.S. legal market. This includes information on the current state of the legal industry, including the latest salary trends and compensation, and expert advice on choosing the right career path in the legal industry. The guide also provides an in-depth analysis of the legal industry, including detailed class rankings in each state.

Benefits of Using the Guide

The 2003 Class Rankings Guide is an invaluable resource for attorneys and law students. It provides a comprehensive overview of the U.S. legal market, as well as a state-by-state listing of law school rankings. It also offers expert advice on career paths and salary trends in the legal industry, providing attorneys and students with the information they need to make informed decisions about their career paths.

BCG Attorney Search

BCG Attorney Search is a leading recruitment and placement firm for attorneys. The firm has a long-established reputation for providing high-quality legal talent to its clients. BCG Attorney Search is committed to connecting attorneys and law students with the best legal opportunities available. The firm takes a personalized approach to each search, focusing on the individual needs of attorneys and students.

Learn the 10 Factors That Matter to Big Firms More Than Where You Went to Law School